TRAIL OF BLOOD MARKS DEATH OF REBEL CHIEFTAIN

Pancho Villa Slain in Fight
With His Secretary
at Ranch.
GENERAL WAR ENSUES
Rebel Leader Claims Heavy
Role of Aggressor in Life of Mexico.

(By the Associated Press)
CHIHUAHUA, Mexico, July 20.—Gen. Francisco (Pancho) Villa, commander of the rebel armies in northern Mexico for ten years, was shot and killed this morning at 8:30 o'clock by Miguel Trillo, his secretary, at his large ranch at Canutillo, Durango.

In the battle that followed Trillo was killed by men loyal to their slain chieftain and according to the latest advices received from the ranch the fight still is in progress.

More than 100 casualties have occurred in the sanguinary fight which followed the shooting of Villa.

Trillo is said to have become incensed at the former bandit leader, began firing at him suddenly. Villa died almost instantly.

Trillo was fired upon by other men and was killed a few minutes later. The men who had rallied behind Trillo then engaged the Villa troops and a general battle broke out within the ranch. Villa had about 800 men on the ranch who were trained in the handling of firearms having followed the chieftain in his campaigns against the Obregon government just prior to his surrender and signing of the amnesty with Obregon.

Francisco ("Pancho") Villa, guerrilla chieftain and bandit leader in Mexico for more than ten years, declared that he had ended his career of outlawry in August, 1920, when, at the head of 900 followers, the remnant of what had once been his army of 35,000 men, he entered San Pedro, Coahuila, and amid the cheers of the populace, announced the intention of himself and men of accepting amnesty and settling down as farmers.

A few weeks earlier, Villa had surrendered to Federal forces at Salinas. He then declared his adherence to Provisional President de la Huerta and General Alvaro Obregon, later elected president to succeed Carranza. Before capitulating, Villa demanded and was granted by the Mexican government, one year's pay and a small farm for each of his men, a grant equal to $2,000,000 in gold.

One of the most notable escapades of Villa was his raid on Columbus, N. M., on March 6, 1916, in which he and his followers killed 17 Americans. It resulted in a punitive American military expedition under General Pershing crossing the border and maintaining a "dead or alive" pursuit of Villa which lasted more than nine months and cost the United States government, according to a war department estimate nearly $100,000,000.

GUARDS RETURN FROM FORT SILL

Local Battery Marks up High Record at Concentration of State Guard.

With the home-coming welcome of hundreds awaiting them, the Ada officers and enlisted personnel of the Oklahoma National Guard arrived at 4:50 Thursday afternoon after the annual summer encampment at Fort Sill.

Ada guardsmen departed for camp July 5 and broke camp at Fort Sill Thursday morning. While the loving cup, presented annually to the organization in the Oklahoma division registering the best general excellence report, went this year to Battery E of Anadarko, Battery F of Ada came in for a close second and stood out as one of the best in the regiment.

Captain Robert S. Kerr, Battery F, was pleased with the conduct of Ada guardsmen and of the instruction received. During the encampment period, Battery F was in the midst of activities at camp, showing a high mark on range firing for their three-day experience.

Battery F, 160 F. A., Headquarters, 189 F. A. and 22 members of the 160 F. A. band made the Ada representation in the national guard movement to Fort Sill.

Lieutenant-Colonel Byron Sledge and Major Lowrey H. Harrell were high ranking officers from Ada, who helped direct the annual encampment this year.

WAUSAU, Wis., July 20.—Mary Lawando, the "swamp girl of Marathon county," began her first full day in jail this morning in default of $1,500 bail which would give her liberty until her trial on a charge of assault with intent to kill which is set for the next term of the district court more than a month away.

New Department For East Central

Another department will be added to the college this fall with the organization of a junior high school in connection with the regular training school in which prospective teachers secure their actual practice training.

This change in organization comes as the result of an increasing demand for trained junior high school teachers in the schools of that nature throughout the state.

The work done in the junior high school will consist of that of the seventh, eighth, and ninth grades, with some changes in the curriculum.

The administration plans to make the training school with the junior high school in connection the best in the southwest. The junior high school will be in charge of two supervisors, Miss Stella Watson and John W. Zimmerman, both of whom are teachers of wide experience.

The actual teaching in this department will be done by advanced students in the college, all persons receiving a degree from the institution being required to teach in it for a term in addition to the two terms required of work in the lower grades for a life certificate.

Miss Watson is a graduate of Texas University and has valuable experience in high school and supervisory work, having been for some years critic teacher for the seventh and eighth grades of the training school here. She will spend a month at Leland Stanford University in preparation for the work of the coming year, studying under Terman and Kelly, masters of junior high school work.

Mr. Zimmerman is now at Peabody College, Tennessee, taking graduate work in junior high school administration. He is a graduate of East Central and has had experience in college and high school work.

WALTON CHANGES REGENTS BOARD

Conservatives Again at Helm of Control of State University Board.

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20.—Governor Walton broke the deadlock that has existed on the new board of regents since its appointment Thursday when he issued an executive order removing D. F. Scanlan of Osage and Dr. G. M. Clifton of Norman, appointing as their successors Oscar Welch and Mont Highley of Oklahoma City.

The governor's action is taken as an endorsement of the stand taken by C. J. Wrightman of Tulsa and Frank Buttram of Oklahoma City. It also loosens the hold of the Farm-Labor Reconstruction league upon the state university, passing control of the institution into the hands of the conservative faction on the board.

Change Was Needed.

The executive order removing Clifton and Scanlan is as follows: "Whereas, an impasse has been reached on the board of regents of the state university, making it impossible for the board as at present constituted to function to the best advantage and,

"Whereas, I believe that the highest interest of the university and the public good requires a change in the personnel of said board, now,

Welch University Graduate.

"Therefore, I, J. C. Walton, governor of the state of Oklahoma, by virtue of the power vested in me by law, do hereby remove as members of the board of regents of the state university: Mr. D. F. Scanlan and Dr. G. M. Clifton.

(Signed) J. C. Walton, Governor.

Oscar L. Welch, one of the new board members, graduated from Oklahoma university in 1916, having previously spent two years at West Point. He is a son of A. L. Welch, who served during the World war as captain of Company F, 111th engineers. Welch is a resident of Oklahoma City where he is engaged in the bond business.

Climax At Last Meeting.

Mont Highley, the other new member, is also a resident of Oklahoma City and a university man. He is a practicing attorney and has been Belgian consul at Oklahoma City. He is a member of the city park board.

The contest between the Wrightman-Buttram combination and Scanlan and Clifton reached a climax at the last meeting of the board when Dr. W. H. Kieckhefer of Madison, Wis., was offered the presidency of the university.

Wrightman and Buttram immediately upon their appointment to the board took the position that an outstanding educator should be brought to Oklahoma without regard to sectional lines or political affiliations.

AIR SERVICE TO STOP ATTEMPTS AT LONG FLIGHT

Announced That Maughan
Will Not Be Given
Another Trial

NEARS RECORD GOAL
Leak in Oil Tank Spells Failure of Flyer to Make Daring Flight.

WASHINGTON, July 20.—The army air service today announced that the attempt to make a daylight dash flight across the continent in which Lieut. Russell L. Maughan has failed twice, would be called off for the year.

No explanation accompanied the announcement but it is noted by air service officials that the continuous shortening of the available daylight period during the time of preparation for another attempt would be sufficient to make it impossible that Lieut. Maughan could reach his destination at San Francisco before dark.

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., July 19.—The failure greeted the second attempt within ten days of Lieutenant Russell L. Maughan, intrepid army aviator to span the United States between dawn and dusk Thursday, when an oil leak forced him to land here at 5:08 p. m. (Mountain time).

He had covered more than two thirds of the distance, a total of 1,925 miles, and he was hurtling toward his goal at the speed of 170 miles an hour, after leaving three of his five scheduled stopping points behind him, in his race with the sun, when he was forced to descend.

A tiny stream of oil spurting from an almost invisible aperture in the oil cooler of the Curtiss pursuit plane, necessitated the cancellation of the flight.

A similar leak had caused nearly an hour's delay at Cheyenne, Wyoming, his third stopping place, shortly after noon and Maughan was driving his motor at top speed to regain the time which had been lost. For more than 200 miles westward from Cheyenne the motor raced smoothly, but at Rock Springs, the cooler suddenly began to leak. Maughan passed over the air mail field at 4:58 p. m. determined to continue to Salt Lake, Utah, the next stopping place.

As the fumes from the escaping oil became stronger, however, he realized the futility of continuing turned back and landed at the almost deserted field.

Disappointment Is Bitter.

A brief examination by two pilots, convinced Maughan that it would be impossible to reach San Francisco, the western terminus of his flight, before darkness closed in.

Bitterly disappointed at the failure of his second attempt to cross the continent, when success seemed almost assured, Maughan made a cursory examination of the oil cooler and strode from the air mail field to a Rock Springs hotel to retire for the night.

"How do you feel, Russell?" he was asked by the Associated Press correspondent.

"Well, how would you feel?" he replied.

"Well, it was a leak in the oil cooler, I noticed it first near North Platte, Neb., but it was not very bad. I thought we had it fixed at Cheyenne, but it became worse as I drove on. Twenty miles out of Rock Springs, it began to leak in bucket fulls. I thought best to quit."

HARDING TO STOP AT RAIL CENTER

President to Head Party to Cordova When Roads
Pierce Alaska.

(By the Associated Press)
On Board the U. S. S. Henderson with President Harding, July 20.—A visit to Cordova, the ocean terminus of one of the two railways piercing the Alaskan interior, was a feature of today's program for President Harding who is nearing the end of the first visit to Alaska made by a chief executive of the United States.

At Cordova the president was expected to take the Copper river and Northwestern railway for a run to the Miles and Childs glaciers. These glaciers are on opposite sides of the Copper river at Mile 49 where the stream is spanned by a mammoth steel bridge set in concrete. The place is said to be the only spot in the world where a glacier can be reached by train.

The time at sea is bringing Mr. Harding back to health, according to her physicians. Both the Hardings are trying to store strength for the strenuous days on the Pacific coast after they land at Vancouver, British Columbia, Thursday. The Henderson will stop at Sitka, capital of Alaska, when the Russians owned the territory, before going to Vancouver.

Sunshine Valley Alleged Spot of Moonshine Makers

Sunshine Valley, 20 miles from Ada, doesn't spell the absence of moonshine in that particular vicinity, the arrest of Jack Carr and T. A. Smoot with a quantity of mash indicated.

Smoot and Carr were brought from Sunshine Valley and placed in the dark chambers of the county jail until they are permitted home and obtain vouching for the same.

Date of preliminary hearing has not been announced.

Short Declares Tax Refund Not Valid Under Rule

(By the Associated Press)
OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20.—Refund of ad valorem taxes collected illegally by the state were lost to the tax payers today by an opinion handed down by George Short, attorney general. Short held that $1,500,000 in the state treasury at the end of the fiscal year which closed June 30 was a balance and not a surplus, thereby invalidating the Ninth legislature's order that refunds should be paid from the surplus remaining in the treasury at the end of the year. The refund would have amounted to approximately $2,115,000.

EDWARDS FREE ALLEN SHOOTING

County Attorney Orders Release of Man Held in Jail Here.

Jack Edwards, held in the county jail here after the shooting at Allen last Saturday night, was released yesterday afternoon on order of the county attorney's office after they had made a thorough investigation of his participation in the drunken brawl that resulted in the death of Jim Cooper and wounding of Banks Roberson.

County Attorney J. W. Dean stated that Edward's release was based on his statement of the knowledge of the affair and the fact that his statement had been corroborated by the testimony taken at a court of inquiry held at Allen Tuesday.

Dean intimated that Edward's statement practically bore out the text of the first summary of the case and also that he was not in the room at the time of the killing.

Edwards had been held in the county jail here as a result of a member of the party declaring that "Edwards shot him as authorities came upon the scene."

No charges have yet been filed in the case, Dean stated late today, the condition of Roberson still being uncertain. Dean said that charges would depend on the recovery of Roberson.

THREE MORE VICTIMS OF TRAFFIC ARRESTS

Three violators of the city traffic laws brought down the wrath of municipal court this morning for the full penalty of a fine of $8.75 and a warning issued against further transgression on the restrictions of city ordinances.

Mayor W. H. Fisher declared that all violators of the stop law would be dealt with on similar terms until traffic conditions were safe in the city.

Three fines yesterday for violations of traffic laws brought the total to over a dozen for the week and sounded out the determination of the police department to enforce the city ordinances.

Two prisoners held here on charges of violating the Harrison Narcotics act were placed in the hands of federal authorities.

WHITEHURST WINS STEP TO HOLD OFFICE FORCE

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20.—John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture, won a victory today in his fight to prevent a change in the personnel of his office force when District Judge George W. Clark issued a temporary injunction against members of the board appointed by Governor J. C. Walton restraining them from interfering with the management of his office.

WALTON TO MOVE RESIDENCE FROM UNFRIENDLY CITY

Announcement is Confirmed
That Governor Will Make Muskogee His Home.

FRIENDLY TO CITY

No Comment Made on Story
at Muskogee Concerning Political Scheme.

(By the Associated Press)
MUSKOGEE, July 20.—Gov. J. C. Walton, who according to an announcement in Oklahoma City yesterday by Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, would retire at once to a place of deep seclusion to ward off a threatened nervous breakdown, arrived at Muskogee today and apparently was ready to start making his oft repeated promise that some day he would make this city his home.

Without hesitation Governor Walton confirmed reports that have been current here for weeks and it has been no secret to the governor's friends that some day he intended taking up his official residence in the only city in the state that returned him a large majority over John Field in the gubernatorial election.

The governor will remain in Muskogee several days and while here will inspect several home sites that have been listed for his attention. The new Walton home in Oklahoma City is to be sold, it is stated, and the governor and Mrs. Walton will personally superintend the construction of a home in Muskogee.

Governor Walton was asked point blank to confirm or deny published reports that his moving to Muskogee meant his entrance into the next senatorial campaign.

"That depends entirely upon developments, the chief executive said. "For eight years every time I have won an office I have been beset by opposition that seems not to know when it is whipped. There has been some talk among my friends of my making the senatorial race, but I have not looked ahead farther than the office I now hold."

"If, however, the die-hard opposition to my administration continues its campaign of vitriolic abuse I will have to meet the fire of the enemy in the open. The best way to fight these destructive forces is in a political campaign. If it is necessary for me to become a candidate again to whip the forces that continually oppose me, I may be forced to give the senatorial contest thoughtful consideration."

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 20.—Aldrich Blake, counselor to Gov. J. C. Walton, refused today to comment on a copyright story in the Muskogee Phoenix declaring that the "executive's period of rest and recuperation" announced yesterday by Dr. A. E. Davenport, state health commissioner, would be spent in Muskogee as the ongoing move to put the governor in the United States senate.

The Phoenix story declared that Gov. Walton would purchase a home in Muskogee to conform to the traditional rule that one Oklahoma Senator must be from the eastern side of the state and the other from the western. Walton would seek to succeed Senator Robert L. Owen, the article declared.

Gilbert Harrison, publicity director for the health department declared that he was "thunderstruck" when he saw the account of the Phoenix story. Mr. Harrison had given out Dr. Davenport's announcement yesterday and said he saw the health commissioner at 10 o'clock last night and that at that time there had been no change in the plan for the governor to seek complete rest and seclusion. Mr. Harrison said that Dr. Davenport was out of the city today "with the governor."

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Aline Laverne owns Cypremort, a small plantation in the Louisiana bayous. She leaves the management to John Philbrick, an old retainer and faithful, but not a good business man, as Ah Lee, the Manchurian, who is trying to help Aline, explains to the mysterious John Solomon. Aline's uncle David Macarty and his son, Felix, under pretense of looking after her interests, plot to get control of the plantation.

CHAPTER II.—One of their schemes is to dam the bayou and thus dry up her rice fields. Then they try to get rid of Philbrick. Aline suspects the Macartys and consults Jack Fortier, a young lawyer, who takes her case.

CHAPTER III.—He finds a big fight on his hands, for the Macartys are all powerful. They try to bribe him off.

CHAPTER IV.—Then they have him beaten up, but he is rescued by John Solomon.

CHAPTER V

Upon the following morning, as indicated in the telephone message, Fortier put in a call for Aline Laverne at her hotel. He did this as soon as he reached his office. In his pocket was the telegram from Philbrick. He could feel it burning there.

"Good morning!" he said, when the connection was established. "This is Mr. Fortier. You left word for me to call you up?"

"Yes," answered Aline's voice. It sounded oddly disturbed. "Yes, I—my uncle requested me to ask if you would lunch with us today, at the Louisiana."

Her uncle had requested! "With pleasure," said Fortier quietly. "At what time?"

"About one." Her voice dropped until it was barely audible. "I may call this morning. Good-by."

Fortier intervened as she was about to ring off.

"One moment! Have you heard from Philbrick?"

"No."

"All right. An revoir!"

Fortier swung from the telephone with blank astonishment and uneasy perplexity in his eyes. He was in a turmoil of emotions.

"What the devil has caused such a change in her, unless she has heard from Philbrick," he muttered. "She must not have it, either—at least for the present! How did her uncle learn about me? Or rather—why this invitation?"

By degrees his brain cleared. The contents of that astounding telegram were still hammering away at him. He forced himself to forget it temporarily; he must forget it, in order to cope with the new situation.

Had there been an open rupture between Aline and her uncle. It was hard to say. At all events, Macarty had shown Aline that he was aware of her having called in an attorney. This must have happened the previous evening. Fortier sat and figured it out slowly.

"No, there was no rupture," he decided. "Macarty expected that I would be landed in the hospital today, put out of business. So, like the cautious and careful man he is, he took occasion to have a talk with Aline. Perhaps he suggested that she hire a lawyer. Perhaps she admitted having done so already. And Macarty, instead of showing anger, frightened her by suavely commending her good sense and suggesting that she get her attorney to lunch with them today."

"Yes, that's about it! His unexpected attitude probably alarmed her."

HOPÍ INDIAN BUILDINGS TRACED BACK TO 1920

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 19.—Scientists have determined that the Hopi Indian buildings of many of the villages of the tribe date back to about 1629 when the Hopis revolted against the Spanish priests and tore down missions built by the Spaniards, using many timbers from the missions in constructing their own houses.

A party including Dr. A. E. Douglas of the University of Arizona and Dr. J. A. Jeancon of the Colorado state museum returned recently from the Hopi pueblo villages, where they made a study of the wooden beams in the ancient structures.

Professor Douglas has specialized in the study of rings in Arizona trees with the result that he has been able to determine the age of timbers.

The scientists' principal difficulty lay in securing the permission of the Indians to make borings in the beams which are held sacred by the Hopis.

horribly. Now it's a question what will happen today. Macarty will know that he has failed to bribe me, and that his thug failed to do me up. He wants me out of the way, but he's afraid to act on the spur of the moment. He'll wait, and let his precious Felix attend to me, perhaps. Or else he'll spar for time, write Felix, and get advice."

He remembered that telegram again, with a start. Had David Macarty received the same bit of news that this telegram contained? Very possible. This would change Macarty's plans, too; would render him cautious, would make him gain time and leave the game in the hands of Felix Macarty.

Instead of receiving a call from Aline in person, however, Fortier answered his telephone an hour later to find her on the wire.

"I am afraid to come to the office," she said quietly. Her voice was cool as ever, and quite undisturbed now. "I want to tell you to please not come to the Louisiana. I shall have to dispense with your help, Mr. Fortier."

He was staggered by this.

"Why, please?" he queried.

"Because—I'm afraid that it will be dangerous for you. It is not right—" Fortier broke into a laugh of relief.

"Oh! You're not displeased with my work, or disappointed?"

"No, no!" she exclaimed quickly.

"It's only that there may be some risk—"

"Nonsense, Miss Laverne!" he interjected. "Please say no more on that head. I shall be at the restaurant without fail. Several things have happened since I saw you, and I am full of information, enthusiasm, and ability to cope with any danger! So don't you dare worry about me. Please tell me just how this invitation came about. Did your uncle suggest that you get a lawyer?"

"Why, how do you know?" she asked in surprise.

"I don't. I guessed."

"Yes, that was it—last night at dinner. I had to tell about having seen you. He was not a bit surprised, and said that I had acted very well indeed."

Fortier chuckled. "Good for Uncle David! Go on."

"Well, something in his manner frightened me, that's all. After I had telephoned you this morning, he was delighted to know that you would lunch with us. I know that he had a telegram from Felix last night, and it made him very happy. Oh, I can't bear to be so suspicious—but at the same time, I was so afraid!"

"Forget it, Miss Laverne," said Fortier quickly. "I think I know what was in that wire he received, and perhaps he'll not be so happy later on. Some things must have been happening at Cypremort. I'll tell you about it in good time, but not yet. If we can avoid a showdown with your uncle, we must do it, for the present!"

"Very well, Mr. Fortier. Is there anything else you want to know?"

"Has your uncle any reason for wanting to meet me?"

"I think not—except his professed interest in my affairs."

"Very well. I don't think you need hesitate to come around to the office in case of need—or telephone me and I'll come to the hotel. I must do that in any case, as I want to have a talk with you before you leave the city. I want to go down the first of the week, myself."

"But what has happened down there? You mentioned—"

"Oh, nothing vital! I had a wire from Philbrick with some news. Perhaps I'll have a chance to show it to you today."

"Very well. Good-by!"

Fortier hung up the receiver and lighted a cigar, feeling well satisfied with himself. He realized that Aline must see that telegram from Philbrick, after all. Its astonishing contents had better reach her from friendly lips than from those of David Macarty.

He astonished Miss Smith that noon by paying her salary two weeks in advance and telling her that he was going away for a few days. As this was a Saturday, he sent her home at noon, with the understanding that she was to remain in charge of the office during his absence.

Fortier started for the Louisiana, but his way thither was not direct. First he dropped in at police headquarters and indulged in a conversation with the chief of detectives. The latter obtained a dossier containing the information Fortier wished, and retained it.

"Sure! Here's the whole works, Mr. Fortier. Jean Hennepin, alias Petit Jean, and so on. He broke jail in Latouche while waiting trial for robbery and murder. Probably slipped into the brakes—there's a heap of outlaws in the back bayous, you know. Up the Atchafalaya likewise. It ain't healthy for officers in them parts—all wild country."

"This here Hennepin done a bit of three years, quite a spell back. He's under suspicion of several crimes. He's got a brother, Michael—both Cajuns. The brother is wanted for a shootin' down to Terrebonne. Got any information on them?"

"Not a bit," said Fortier. "The name merely came up in a case on which I was working. I'm much obliged to you."

He went on to his luncheon engagement, thoughtfully enough.

It was surprising to note how this information bore out the remarks of that queer little chap, John Solomon. The latter had conjectured that Petit Jean was not trying to kill Fortier outright. Nor was it likely that Hennepin would have pulled off such a piece of work in the city itself, unless strongly impelled to it.

"Looks like a sweet gang we're up against!" thought Fortier. "That scoundrel's face was devilish. Hope built their missions in northeastern Arizona. Some 60 years later came the Hopi revolt, and the missions were torn down."

Philbrick knows what he's doing down there! If he's made a mistake in this man Wrexham, then we're in for trouble."

Realizing that he was late, he hurried on to the Louisiana. He found Aline Laverne and her great-uncle already there.

Fortier shook hands with David Macarty, who acknowledged the girl's introduction with hearty warmth and cordiality.

"I'm very, very happy to meet you, Mr. Fortier!" he said. "My niece speaks very highly of you. It gives me great pleasure to believe that she has placed her interests in capable hands."

"I appreciate the implied compliment, Mr. Macarty," and Fortier smiled.

He Found Aline Laverne and Her Great-Uncle Already There.

"The more so, since your disinterested kindness has been so excellent a guide to her."

"Ah, but I am not a lawyer, my boy! And to avoid misunderstandings, these financial matters must be kept out of family hands. It is better so. Ah, there is our friend, Ferdy! I trust, my dear Aline, that we may leave the ordering in his hands?"

Macarty rose to speak with the proprietor. He was soon back.

In the cool gray eyes of Aline, Fortier read amusement at this first exchange of compliments. For his own part, he was quite on his guard, and was resolved to be just as smooth as was David Macarty.

David Macarty was an affable, distinguished-looking, even a handsome man. He appeared younger than his forties, but his "poke" collar and old-fashioned cravat lent him an air of dignity. He was well groomed; his taste appeared excellent.

One seeking in the man's face for any hint of moral obliquity would have sought in vain. His eyes were frank and humorous, his lips a trifle compressed, lending an air of caution. His heavy-lidded eyes betrayed secrecy—not a bad trait at all. Any movie actor, cast to act this part as that of a villain, would expire in blank despair. There was nothing big about Macarty, but neither was there anything big in his operations or successes.

Fortier, indeed, discovered a definite charm in the man. Had it not been for that bump behind his ear, he might have begun to think his suspicions were false. As it was, he had both the bump and the telegram from Philbrick to hold him to his game.

Aline said very little, but she missed nothing.

Macarty betrayed a lively interest in Fortier's ambitions, and it was inevitable that the impoverished state of Cypremort should be touched upon. Macarty mentioned Philbrick's name, then turned to his niece with a smile.

"You don't mind if I am frank, my dear? It would never do, you know, for me to say things behind your back—but I should really feel it my duty to speak a word here!"

Aline gave him a cool glance.

"Oh! I have already told Mr. Fortier that you and Philbrick don't like each other. We shall be only too glad to have your advice, Uncle David."

"It is most unfortunate," said Macarty, to Fortier, "that I have never liked this over-seer. I believe he is thoroughly honest, an extremely fine character in many ways! But at times he drinks to excess, and his ability falters. I would suggest, Mr. Fortier, that you look into his management."

"I intend to do so at once," said Fortier, nodding assent. "Your advice seems admirable, sir, and I thank you warmly for offering it. It seems to me that there may be some method of removing the management from Philbrick, without affronting his integrity."

"Quite so, quite so!" agreed Macarty, cordially. "One hesitates to wound an old servant, who may be inefficient yet is very faithful. Philbrick, when under the influence of liquor, is liable to the most extraordinary acts! Only a few days ago, I understand, he shot a negro—killed the poor fellow!"

Fortier looked up with a swift frown.

"Really? That sort of thing is bad, sir! Very bad! It cannot be endured for a moment. Is Philbrick under arrest, then?"

Macarty compressed his lips for an instant, as though impelled to say something which he was determined not to utter. Then he waved his hand, glanced around, and leaned forward. He spoke softly.

"For the sake of my niece, Mr. Fortier, you will understand that we must

Washington's winning shell can be seen on extreme right.

The "huskies," Washington university's powerful crew of sweep pullers, showed the effete east a few things in the art of rowing when it copped the senior eight event in the Poughkeepsie classic by easily defeating Navy and Columbia.

avoid all notoriety, if possible. Therefore, I undertook to keep the matter quiet. I have a little influence in the parish, and I believe that Philbrick will never be molested by the law. Of course, such actions cannot go on forever."

"I understand," assented Fortier. "Under the circumstances, Mr. Macarty, your kindness speaks volumes for your good heart! Perhaps we can get rid of the man without trouble."

Aline Laverne heard this conversation with a very slight flush in her cheeks, but her gray eyes flashed. Fortier hastened to give her a hint.

"You will pardon these remarks, Miss Laverne? I know your attachment to Philbrick, and I would not cause you any unhappiness. I think your uncle will bear me out, however, in the statement that sentiment is a very bad thing in business."

"Exactly, my boy, exactly!" affirmed Macarty at once. "You have the right idea, sir. Handle things like a gentleman, but with a firm rein."

"We shall see," murmured the girl. The luncheon was nearly over when Macarty suddenly turned to his niece.

"By the way, Aline! You may recall that I had occasion to engage a new steward for the yacht? An odd little man of English birth, although an American citizen?"

The girl looked up. "Yes. You spoke of him."

"He has proved to be an absolute treasure!" said Macarty with enthusiasm. "Upon my word, the man is a genius! It appears that he knows his business thoroughly, and he made a report this morning that astonished me. That scoundrel who disappeared had been grafting regularly—must have stolen a good sum of money from first to last! This man Solomon handed me a check for a hundred dollars, the so-called 'commission' for cabin stores. He actually turned it over to me, as rightfully belonging to me!"

"I suppose you made him a present of it?" asked the girl, a twinkle in her eyes.

"By no means!" stated her uncle. "I made him a present of five dollars. His gratitude was quite touching. I assure you. By the way, Mr. Fortier, when do you go to the island? Aline says that you intend to look over the ground in person."

"I hope to run down next week," said Fortier.

"Then, sir, why not come with us? There is a spare cabin aboard, and we shall get away Monday noon. We would be delighted to have your company, eh, Aline? And it would save you a rather disagreeable trip by train."

"Certainly," said the girl. Her eyes met those of Fortier, and in them he read a sudden warning message that belied her words. It was a message almost of fright. "By all means, Mr. Fortier!"

"Thank you," returned the latter. "I shall be delighted to accept!"

A moment later, Macarty was summoned to the telephone. No sooner had he left, than Fortier took a yellow slip of paper from his pocket.

"I think it is best for me to accept this invitation," he said quietly. "Please let me be the judge! And read this message."

Aline Laverne spread out the telegram. It read:

"J. Fortier, New Orleans: They have got me this time. Am leaving plantation in charge of Captain Wrexham. Do not interfere with him. No hurry. Love to Aline."

"J. PHILBRICK."

"Don't worry," said Fortier quickly. "A good deal must have happened down there—more than we can guess. Philbrick is no fool."

"I am not worrying," said Aline. Her gray eyes were serene once more. She was still smiling gravely at Fortier when David Macarty rejoined them.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE ON FLOOD CONDITION

(By the Associated Press)

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., July 20.—Plans for what it is intended shall be a monster convention here in October of representatives of all states in the great plains region from the Dakotas to the gulf, at which concerted action will be undertaken to lessen both the flood and drought hazards of the area, are to be laid at a meeting here July 24 of the executive committee in charge of the proposal. The meeting originally was set for July 23.

The committee represents commercial bodies and farmers' organizations throughout the state. Its members intend to draft a program and issue invitations to representatives of all interests in the affected states which would be expected to co-operate in a combined water conservation and flood control project.

Railroad and banking interests probably will be asked to have representatives at the committee meeting. It has been indicated.

The committee is composed of J. F. Owens, president of the Oklahoma State Chamber of Commerce; Ed. Overholser, president of the Oklahoma City chamber of commerce; John A. Whitehurst, president of the state board of agriculture; J. B. Theburn, secretary of the Oklahoma Historical Society; Joe L. Pope, manager of the Woodward, Okla., chamber of commerce; Fletcher Davis, manager of the Albus, Okla., chamber of commerce; E. L. Mitchell, former state senator from Clinton; H. P. Cunningham, Fairview and William A. Strong of Boise City.

Those who like musical comedies or circuses will especially enjoy the tournament scene in the big Cosmopolitan production "When a Knighthood Was in Flower," a Paramount picture starring Marion Davies which opens at the McSwain Theatre today. Tiers of fancifully decorated boxes fluttering with flags and pennants and draped with garlands of roses; beautifully gowned women; court attendants; knights in armor and court jesters make of this brilliant scene one of the most sparkling events imaginable. The glitter and the splendor of it all remind one alternately of a circus or musical comedy.

In the central box sit King Henry VIII and Queen Catherine while Princess Mary Tudor leans over the railing, enraptured at the vision of the gallant Charles Brandon, clad in armor, as he stops his coal black horse directly in front of the royal party and bows low. Miss Davies plays the part of Princess Mary and her charm was never set off to greater advantage than in the regal jeweled robes of the princess who was willing to forsake the throne for love.

Robert G. Vignola directed the impressive production. Lyn Harding plays King Henry VIII. He is one of England's foremost actors and he has played the part over two hundred times on the legitimate stage. Theresa Conover Maxwell is cast as the queen "When a Knighthood Was in Flower" is one of the most elaborate screen productions ever made in this country. Three studios were used in the filming and the costumes cost a small fortune.

FORMER KAISER HAS OLD POMP

William Maintains Hold on Imperial Bearing despite Reversals.

(By the Associated Press)

DOORN, July 20.—William Hohenzollern, once German emperor, today in Doorn maintains his Imperial airs of old, according to the recitals of those who from time to time come in contact with him.

The latest story is contributed by a traveling company of student-actors. Augmenting their slender incomes by acting mediaeval mystery plays in various German and Dutch cities, the actors were requested to give a performance at the former emperor's residence.

Before doing so they were received by William, and they have since given their impressions of the reception.

First they were instructed how to behave. "Speak to His Majesty just as the words come," said the marshal. "Address him in accordance with his exalted position, and kindly make a very low bow."

After being admitted to the house, William and an officer appeared in the hall. One of the students describes William as having haughty movements and superior airs. His eyes are nervous, and a hard, pale grey in color. He has striking grey eyebrows. Lines of age furrow his brow, and his mouth seems extraordinarily sensuous. His beard and moustache have turned grey, and his complexion is unhealthy.

William wore a grey-green field cape and a green sporting hat. The student thought that civilian dress made him appear bourgeois. His manner of address was sharp and Prussian.

William's foible of omniscience appeared at once in his conversation, and he started right in. "So you are going to offer us mystery plays? They are, of course, the plays that reached such a flourishing condition among the ancient Greeks."

Then the former monarch proceeded to give a history of these plays down to modern times. The marshal whispered delightedly to the student: "The Kaiser knows everything."

In the evening the student-actors played "The Dance of Death" and the lyrical "Paradise Play." Princess Hermine, Williams wife, was greatly taken by the plays and as she came on the stage to thank the players, she remarked: "You must come again. Here are perishes intellectually. It is seldom that anything of value is offered to us."

SAVED SICK SPELLS

Black-Draught Found Valuable by a Texas Farmer, Who Has Known Its Usefulness Over 30 Years.

Naples, Texas.—"I have used Thedford's Black-Draught for years—I can safely say for more than 30 years," declares Mr. H. W. Cromer, a substantial, well-known farmer, residing out from here on Route 3.

"I am 43 years old, and when a small boy I had indigestion and was puny, and my folks gave me a liver regulator. Then Black-Draught was advertised and we heard of it."

"I began to take Black-Draught, and have used it, when needed, ever since. I use Black-Draught now in my home, and certainly recommend it for any liver trouble."

"I have given it a thorough trial, and after thirty years can say Black-Draught is my stand-by. It has saved me many sick spells."

Mr. Cromer writes that he is "never out of Black-Draught," and says several of his neighbors prefer it to any other liver medicine. "I always recommend Black-Draught to my friends," he adds.

This valuable, old, powdered liver medicine is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and has none of the bad effects so often observed from the use of calomel, or other powerful mineral drugs. Be sure to get the genuine, Thedford's.

The Fanning Bee Hive

By Norman E. Brown

THE GENT
Who warbled that a ball player is without honor in his own home town will please explain how come that George Uhle is the pitching star of the Cleveland Indians these days. For this bird was grabbed off the sandlots of Cleveland four seasons ago and has been with Cleveland ever since.

When Uhle turned back the Yankees on four hits for the second consecutive time the other day it gave him the lead in the league for victories won temporarily at least. And he has been running neck and neck with Urban Shocker of the Browns and Joe Bush and Howard Ehmke for the lead right along.

It was Uhle's pitching that helped keep the Indians in the thick of the peanut fight last year. Long George turned in twenty-two victories along with but sixteen defeats. This year he should register more victories than last season.

Life hasn't been a bed of roses for George, however. After setting the baseball world agog by winning ten games for the Indians his first year in professional baseball—in 1919—Uhle suffered from injuries (and some fans say over-confidence and as a result did but little in 1920, the year the Indians won the league and world pennants. Two years ago, however, he came through with sixteen victories. Uhle is twenty-five.

POWERFUL EASTERN CONCERN TO RECEIVER'S HANDS

(By the Associated Press)

COLUMBUS, Ohio, July 20.—The R. L. Dowling companies of Ohio, Indiana and Pennsylvania and the International Note and Mortgage Co., a Dowling subsidiary, failed to oppose receivership proceedings, instituted last Saturday by 13 stockholders and Judge Duncan of the Franklin county common pleas court announced that three receivers would be appointed to take over the affairs of the concern.

The birth rate for England and Wales for 1922 was the lowest on record save for the war years, 1915 to 1919.

SEEK STANDARD NAMES FOR PLANTS AND FLOWERS

(By the Associated Press)

CHICAGO, July 19.—The chaotic state of affairs in the miscalling of names of flowers, plants and other perennials, has made necessary the standardization of their names, and a report on the subject has been adopted by the American Association of Nurserymen.

The compilation of names of these perennials, the result of more than five years of actual work on the part of the sub-committee of the American Joint Committee of Horticulturalists, is heralded as a great stride forward in the horticultural world.

As an example, the committee pointed out that there are more than 2,000 names for roses. Many names are used for the same rose, and this has resulted in complication. With the completion of the new nomenclature, it is hoped that use of the standard names will become general.

Standardized perennial names, both common and scientific, will benefit the public and the grower, according to the committee, and will tend to eliminate unfair practices. Heretofore growing, buying and selling have been largely guess work, the committee said and based on personal equation rather than on fair, square, open and accepted business standards.

It is expected that the government will accept this nomenclature as an official standard.

YOUTHFUL JOCKEYS RIDE TO VICTORY IN BRITAIN

LONDON.—The patter of tiny feet is making its impress on British racing history, just as it has done in American movies and Russian chess. One of the jockeys to be seen flying around the race tracks near London is only twelve years old. Another after having had to be satisfied with coming in second several times last year, is now reaping the fruits of his long struggle to succeed by riding winners. He is just fourteen years old.

His name is Stafford Walter Henry Ingham and he hasn't a whisker on his face, but his master has. For his master is King George. The King was watching the kid the other day when he achieved the most glorious triumph of his "career," winning the famous Royal Hunt Cup on His Majesty's four-year-old Weatherlane at the Ascot meet. It was the youngster's ninth victory on the turf. Jockey, saddle, harness and all other impediments carried by Weatherlane weighed only 96 pounds.

Ingham's father, a chemist at Epson, reared his boy to be a jockey even though another son was killed on the Downs, his horse striking against a post and throwing the youth to his death.

SEEK LEVEL RATES FOR SHIPMENTS OF FLOUR

WASHINGTON, July 20.—Rates on flour from Oklahoma milling points to Galveston and other Gulf ports ought to be reduced to the level of rates on wheat moved over the same route, said a report made today by the Interstate Commerce Commission examiners who investigated the complaint of Oklahoma millers. If the commission concurs in the conclusion the railroads will be required to make new rates.

IRELAND TRYING FIND WORK FOR UNEMPLOYED

(By the Associated Press)

DUBLIN, July 20.—There are more than 62,000 persons without work in the Irish Free State for whom the government is struggling to find employment. The unemployment difficulty, and the liberation of 12,000 political prisoners still interned, constitute Ireland's most formidable problem.

It is estimated that the Free State army now consists of 49,000 men, and before the end of the year the Minister of Defense hopes to bring this figure down to 29,000. The government is puzzled to know what to do with the 20,000 soldiers when they are demobilized, the problem is common to all Europe, where, through a disturbance of markets, there are more men than can be absorbed in industry. Fortunately, the Irish Free State is in a better position to absorb these men than most other countries would be. It starts off with the important fact that it is a creditor nation, exporting in each year a great deal more than it imports.

NEW DEPARTMENT FOR EAST CENTRAL

New Division Outlined
The plan of the Junior high school is to divide the grade system into groups of six, three and three grades, instead of the former eight and four which lead to graduation from high school.

In the junior high school where the pupil will pass through the seventh, eighth and ninth grades, the curriculum is fitted more closely to the pupil who at that time is entering a new stage of life and in some instances the junior high has proved valuable in providing a means for finding the special capabilities and likes of the pupils.

In such circumstances it is believed that the child does superior work and has better opportunities than under the old plan of grades. The college administration plans to take about fifteen or eighteen pupils in the first two years of junior high school work and a maximum of thirty in the third year, which represents the freshman year of the ordinary high school.

The department will be located on the top floor of the education building, the entire floor with the exception of one room being given over to it.

The administration has already received a number of applications from parents and it is believed that by September 1 the maximum number of students will be available. Furniture and equipment have been ordered and will be here and ready for use by the beginning of the fall term.

Philippines Report Prosperity.

(By the Associated Press)

MANILA.—A balance of trade amounting to $5,839,000 in favor of the Philippine Islands was shown during the month of April, according to figures just issued by the bureau of customs. The total value of the exports during April was $11,600,000 while the imports were valued at $5,760,000. The total foreign commerce of the Philippines during the first three months of 1923 reached $51,177,000 compared with $39,813,000 for the first three months of 1922, the exports for the first quarter of 1923 exceeding the imports by $8,334,000.

BIBLE THOUGHT FOR TODAY

IT PROFITETH NOTHING:—Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing.—1 Cor. 13:3.

THE PHILIPPINE MUDDLE.

When the United States bought the Philippine Islands from Spain she bought a nice little war which lasted several years and cost quite a bit of money. At its conclusion the natives were assured that at some uncertain date in the future, when they had acquired the experience needed for self-government, they would be given their independence. In keeping with this promise the natives were gradually given more power over their affairs until they have some time regarded themselves as fully prepared for independence.

However, in the United States there has been a difference of opinion over the fitness of the islanders to navigate their ship of state without the guiding hand of Uncle Sam at the helm. President Wilson was of the opinion that they were ready for independence and Burton Harrison, his governor-general, gave the natives much leeway in the management of their affairs.

The election of Harding brought about a reversal of this policy. It was charged that Harrison had been altogether too reassuring and had encouraged the Filipinos in the belief that they no longer needed the direction of this country in their affairs. Accordingly Harding sent a man of altogether a different type to take charge of affairs. This was General Wood, who had held the same position before and was supposed to be familiar with the affairs of the islands. He soon gave evidence that independence was still a dream and that no one need entertain it at this time. He had no sympathy with the course followed by Harrison and was soon in collision with the leaders of the islands. The quarrel came to a climax when the cabinet and other prominent officials resigned. The affair is now in the hands of President Harding and his judgment is awaited. To the Filipinos it will mean the difference of complete independence or the local self-government they now enjoy.

The Turks came out of the row with the powers of Europe with flying colors. For a century Turkey was bullied and frequently told where to head in, but at last the worm has turned and in the face of all Europe Turkey came back. In the first place no nation wanted war and Turkey, just emerging victorious from the war with Greece promised more unless her demands were complied with. Among these was the return of territory in Europe that had been given to Greece and the evacuation of Constantinople by the allied forces. To add to the difficulties of the situation both England and France have a large Mohammedan population to deal with in their colonies and there was no assurance that they would remain loyal in the event of war with Turkey. In the next place France and Great Britain already held considerable slices of territory wrested from Turkey in the war and they wanted to save at least part of this booty. The result was that when the Turks went to the Lausanne conference it was with the air of victors and for once Europe meekly submitted to the demands of a nation that they have ceased to reckon with. If the Turks are content to let well enough alone, things may drift along for some years to come, but if they are filled with an idea of their own importance and undertake to repeat their tactics, they may yet stir up trouble that will end their rule once for all. Turkey is now the only Moslem nation that is independent, all others being under control of the western powers. She has an opportunity to play an important part in the affairs of the world and her future is in her own hands.

The death of Admiral Sigsbee, who was captain of the ill-fated battleship Maine when she was blown up Havana harbor in 1898 calls to mind the swift passage of time. The commanders of those stirring days, both naval and military, are nearly all gone. Sampson, Schley, Evans, Dewey, Philip, Shafter, Wheeler, Lee, Roosevelt and most of the others of note have answered the last call and a new generation has grown up since America entered the war to set Cuba free.

Bud Ledbetter, sheriff of Muskogee county and one of the old time officers of the Territory, has turned his attention from bad men to bad insects and has invented a boll weevil machine, a press dispatch says. Bud helped to clear the state of tough men and now if he can clear it of destructive insects he will have adoubleclaim to the gratitude of the people.

The German "Big Berthas" threw shells 75 miles but they could not inflict more than a fractional part of the damage a venomous tongue can. The big guns were fired only at intervals while the tongue of the scandal monger is always busy.

Regardless of who is right and who is wrong, these squabbles and lawsuits over various offices in the state are something the state has no reason to be proud of. However, the lust for power has in all ages made trouble.

John D. Rockefeller at 84.
(New York World)

Since the rise of a new figure in plutocracy at Detroit, John D. Rockefeller's birthdays possibly share a divided popular interest. But the founder of Standard Oil still ranks as the premier American Croesus, the example of whose sturdy old age makes every addition of a year to his lifetime a matter of public moment. Most men at 84 do little more than lead the simple life. John D., playing golf as well as dispensing philanthropy and keeping in touch, if less assiduously, with the great commercial enterprises from which his riches were derived, is many kinds of an example to his fellow-men.

No doubt a distinguishing aspect of his later life has been its reflection of a changed public sentiment regarding his fortune. Opinion of its predatory nature has softened with the passing of time and in the light of its open-handed distribution for objects of philanthropy and public welfare. The result has been to make Mr. Rockefeller a more sympathetic figure than ever before and to fasten popular attention on the man more than the multi-millionaire. A new generation appraises him with less animosity and accords to the veteran celebrating his eighty-fourth birthday a kindly appreciation of which he was not the object to his earlier contemporaries.

FOREIGN PORTS COLD TO STRANDED SAILORS

(By the Associated Press)

HAVRE, France, July 20.—Unwary American seamen in large numbers, who carelessly or ignorantly sign faulty articles of employment on foreign vessels, are finding themselves stranded here without any hope of getting back home. To many cases jobless and penniless sailors have been arrested as vagabonds and thrown into French jails, and, according to their stories, the same danger threatens them in a number of other foreign ports.

There has lately been a disposition, the sailors say, among foreign steamship lines operating between Europe and American ports to bring American seamen to Europe and drop them, either through false representation or misunderstanding on the part of the men when signing the articles. In some instances the men are careless and sign in a casual way, hardly knowing or caring what they do. Some sign for a port thinking it means a round trip and then find themselves stranded on foreign soil.

Finding they have no means to return to America, many of them appeal to the American consulates. But nothing can be done for them except in cases of men holding seamen's cards in the American Merchant Marine.

The Y. M. C. A. at Havre has helped out a number of men, but the appeals have become so numerous recently that the Association has reached the limit of its funds for such purposes.

POLISH DUELISTS POOR MARKSMEN; SHOTS GO WILD

Former President Pilsudski of Poland said some mean words about Count Szeptycki, minister of war. Pistols at sunrise, retorted the count. They met. Both missed. Then they went home with headaches for getting up so early. And honor was appeased.

NO TRICKS USED BY HART FOR STUNTS

Nothing annoys William S. Hart more than that anyone should have the impression that his feats of reckless horsemanship are tricks of the stage or of the camera. At the conclusion of a particularly risky episode this very calm and placid gentleman will give vent to his feelings on this subject as he moves stiffly and uneasily from chair to sofa in his dressing room.

In the latest drama at the American Theatre today and Saturday there are two remarkably daring "stunts." Hart portrays a gambler who is locked up in a log jail on suspicion of having held up a stage coach, of being "The Last of the Stage Coach Bandits." An accomplice outside furnishes a horse, and Hart escapes from the Vigilantes just as the noose is prepared and the tree selected. A thrilling chase ensues. When Hart breaks jail he jumps astride the horse from a height of twenty feet. This is a feat that calls for the display of almost unexampled agility and horsemanship, and it is safe to say that no other living actor would attempt it.

The same episode shows horse and rider rolling down a precipitous incline. The camera never lies and modest Bill Hart never attempts to exaggerate his actual doings.

Farmers' Column

Byron Norrell

E. C. Branscome showed us some samples of roasting ears from the field of his son T. W. Branscome on the Starritt place, a mile and a half north of Bebe, that beat anything we have seen this year. He says that his son's crop of 40 acres of corn is good for an average of 20 bushels. He has 30 acres of late cotton that is now full of blooms and the weevil apparently doing little damage.

Bag worms are becoming numerous both in town and in the country. It is reported that in the woods many pecan, walnut and persimmon trees are being stripped of their last leaf by these pests. Some years ago they became so bad among the shade trees of Oklahoma City and other towns that an organized campaign had to be undertaken in order to save the trees. The only way to destroy them is to tear down their nests and burn them or better still saw off the limbs containing the bags and burn the whole business. Sometimes a bag may be destroyed by applying a torch for a few minutes.

Farm Flocks at Shows.

ed more freely at state fairs and poultry shows, but there seems to be little interest in them around here. The opinion is abroad that it is useless to expect premiums and not winning they get no value from the exhibit. I may not get a ribbon but if my exhibits are judged I get an idea of where they are lacking, and that is a big point where I am to rear standard bred flocks. Nevertheless it does seem that some method of grading could be devised that would give every bird a standing whether it won any prize or not, and farmers could have it that way if they would work for it. Fanciers might take the best ribbons but it is worth a lot to know that your flock scores up close to the winners, and if it does not then there is a definite reason shown for the failure, which will be a wonderful help in correcting their faults. Let us work for score card judging at our fairs, even though the big shows may not care to come to it. Then let us take of our best and make the poultry exhibit something worth seeing every year.—Farm and Ranch.

BOLL WEEVIL RANGE NOW EXTENDS NORTH IN STATE

(By the Associated Press)

STILLWATER, Okla., July 20.—The frontier of the boll weevil is pushing northward in Oklahoma, according to reports received here by C. E. Sanborn, entomologist at Oklahoma Agricultural and Mechanical college. While the exact range is not definitely located, the boll weevil appears to extend northeastward through Rogers county to Arkansas and southwestward towards Tillman county, Professor Sanborn says.

Farmers have been urged to forward to the entomological department of the college any specimens of the weevil found in the vicinity of the tentative boundary line.

MOSLEMS FLOCK TO HOLY MECCA

Believers Gather from Parts of Moslem World for Observances.

(By the Associated Press)

CAIRO, June 20.—Pilgrims are now converging on Mecca, their sacred city and the birthplace of Mohammed. Thousands are traveling from all parts of the Moslem world to be present on the day of sacrifice, July 24. Egyptian Mohammedans have dispatched the sacred carpet to Mecca, with elaborate ceremonial and prayer.

Since the burial of the Prophet Mohammed, more than a thousand years ago, Christians have been forbidden to enter the Holy City, which is surrounded with great mystery and veneration. But in spite of this interdiction, sixteen Christians are known to have entered the city in disguise. Death would have been their fate if they had been detected. Thus far no American has set foot within its sacred walls. The foreigners who have penetrated the city have been mostly Englishmen who spoke Arabic and disguised themselves as priests or peasants.

On arrival within a short distance of Mecca the pilgrim discards his ordinary clothing and assumes the garb of a "Hajee"—a garment consisting of a white apron with a piece of cloth thrown over the shoulder. Sandals may be worn, but the head must be kept uncovered.

In the city itself certain ablutions are performed, after which the "Black Stone" is kissed, and the pilgrim runs seven times round the mosque. After special prayers and genuflections he then drinks from the Holy Well, and once more kisses the stone.

On the following morning there takes place the quaint ceremony of pelting the devil with stones, followed by the sacrifice, when a sheep, goat, cow, or camel is offered, according to the pilgrim's means. This concludes the pilgrimage.

The carcass of the slaughtered animal is prepared for use on the return journey and the pilgrim receives a certificate that he is now a "Hajee." As a mark of distinction he thereafter wears a green band.

Tishomingo Slated for Second Game With Local Club

Lack of additional information concerning the ability of the present Tishomingo baseball club caused Manager A. O. Green of the local club to launch a preparedness scheme to rally against the team that placed an ignoble defeat on the record of the club here at their last tussle.

Manager Green stated that the team had improved in ability since the game here last Sunday and would give the boys a run for their money as well as the fans a game they will long remember. The clubs will meet for one game only at the new baseball park Sunday afternoon.

Hopkins Professor Says Insulin Not Sure Cure For Dreaded Of Diseases

(By the Associated Press)
BALTIMORE, July 19.—Insulin, the new remedy for diabetes, is not to be considered in any sense as a cure for that disease, and it is not of such nature as to obviate the necessity of careful diet for all persons undergoing the so-called insulin treatment. These statements are made by Dr. William S. McCann, associate professor in Johns Hopkins Medical School and associate physician of John Hopkins Hospital, under whose care severe cases of diabetes are being given the insulin treatment at the hospital.

Dr. McCann says: "Insulin is not a cure. It is, however, in our experience a specific remedy for diabetes, which has already saved many lives and has alleviated much suffering from the disease. Its effects are only temporary, leaving the fundamental condition of the disease unchanged. The discoverer of insulin, Dr. Banting, has always been very careful not to make the claim that insulin cures diabetes. The manufacturers, Eli Lilly and Co., in the advertising matter on insulin, are likewise careful not to make this extravagant claim. Never before has a great medical discovery been given to the world with more selfishness, on the part of its author, or by more ethical manufacturers. The most that can be said for insulin is that it is a specific remedy for diabetes which retards the metabolism to normal as long as the treatment is continued. In some cases the beneficial effects may continue for a short period after discontinuing the treatment. Sooner or later the patients always return to the condition preceding the treatment unless it is resumed."

"A great deal of harm can arise from careless statements in the press to the effect that diet can be neglected during insulin treatment. The publications of all the men who have subjected insulin to scientific study emphasize the fact that accurate control of the diet is more necessary with insulin than without it. The reason for this is twofold. A given dose of insulin will cause the proper utilization of a fairly definite amount of food. If more food is taken than the dose of insulin provides for, the patient will have sugar in the urine again, so that some of the good effects of the treatment will have been nullified. On the other hand, an overdose of insulin may kill the patient by reducing the sugar of the blood below that which is necessary for life. This means that the diet of the patient must be measured so as to insure that there will be the right amount of food taken to balance the dose of insulin given. The patient who takes insulin is given a liberal diet, but the diet must be accurately measured, and the patient must take all that is prescribed."

"Estimates of the number of sufferers from diabetes vary from half a million to a million in America. Many of these people have the disease in a very mild form, so that it is detected accidentally in life insurance examinations. Such people may go for years before serious consequences of the disease become apparent. Others have a mild form, which responds readily to very moderate reduction of the diet. These people do not need insulin unless it be at times when it is necessary to tide them over emergencies, such as surgical operations, infectious diseases, etc. From 75 to 90 per cent of all cases of diabetes can be controlled satisfactorily by proper dieting, without impairing the patients' efficiency and without undue suffering from restriction of food. For the ten to 20 percent who have the disease in a more severe form, insulin is a Godsend, but is not a cure, and accurate control of the diet must still be maintained."

PLAN FIGHT ON ILLITERACY NOW

Summer School Idea Being Used to Rid State of Illiteracy.

(By the Associated Press)
COLUMBIA, S. C., July 20.—The summer school idea, in a modified form, is being used by South Carolina in this state's fight to wipe out illiteracy.

Vacation boarding schools for men and women who have lacked educational opportunities have been arranged for this summer by the state department of education, in cooperation with the authorities of Lander College for Women, at Greenwood, and Erskine College for men at Due West. A full month's course in elementary subjects is offered at each institution at a cost of $12.50 to the student, which includes all expenses except transportation and laundry.

Pupils whose education has equalled that of an average sixth grade pupil are not accepted for enrollment, nor are boys and girls under 14 years old.

The pupils live in the college dormitories and eat in the college dining halls, and in fact, according to Miss Will Lou Gray, state supervisor of adult school work, lead the same lives that are lead by the college students during the regular terms.

Eighty-nine girls and women attended the first "opportunity" summer school, which was conducted at Lander College last summer. The course offered this summer at Erskine is the first made available to men and boys. The ages of the Lander students ranged from 14 to 54 last year, the average age being 18 years. Many of the women came from the cotton mill villages, and not a few of these had their expenses paid by the management of the mills in which they worked for the remainder of the year.

"I wanted to be able to help my little seven-year-old son with his lessons," one of the older women students said last year, when explaining what had prompted her to leave her family and enroll for the summer course.

To the Victors Belong the Spoils
Desmirched with prairie dust, laden with tales of hardships and adorned with feather-edged moustaches, every product of Walton's own came struggling home, dragging a barracks bag in the trail of soldierly stride.

Coolly disregarding the remark of some unappreciative veteran of a minor engagement across the pond, the art-made recruit maintained that the firing of a French seventy-five didn't cause the demobilization at Fort Sill and went on to say that if some of the soft people would digest slum and beans for a while they would realize the difficulty in even two weeks of thorough army existence.

ENORMOUS WHEAT CROP MAKES TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM

EDGAR CLARK, FORMER CHAIRMAN INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION, NOW CHAIRMAN RESEARCH COUNCIL TRANSPORTATION INSTITUTE

CHICAGO — The 170,000,000 bushels wheat surplus, which was the cause of the National Wheat Conference being called here by the governors of seven states, is only a mental factor in the present market, on account of the probable lack of cars to move the crop, it was declared here by James R. Howard, president of the National Transportation Institute, in an address to a grain shippers conference.

"There will be between 550,000 and 600,000 car loads of wheat to be moved this fall, according to government crop reports," said Mr. Howard. "There was a shortage of 160,787 cars in October, 1922, and the railroads are straining every effort now to make up that shortage. Meanwhile traffic forecasts for the year have been exceeded up to June first by 400,000 car loads and in the latter part of June were exceeding estimates more than 40,000 car loads a week. The roads were loading at that time 1,010,000 cars a week, the highest loadings in history for that time of the year and within 8,539 cars of the highest loadings ever carried by the railroads. The previous peak for that period was 975,000 cars a week in 1918. "This 170,000,000 bushel wheat surplus is nothing but a theory if it can't be brought to market," said Mr. Howard. "It would take 120,000 cars to move this surplus alone. Transportation is the vital problem of agriculture. The railroads are meeting now the heaviest traffic demands in history and at the same time have 20,000 empties on side tracks in the west ready to move the crops. They are running more empties west at the rate of 1,000 cars a day and may have 160,000 cars ready October first, but estimates of excess demands in October run from 75,000 to 200,000 cars a week.

Trail of Blood
Marks Villa's Death

as Durango, to "settle down" on his farm there and shortly after wrote to de la Huerta for school books and supplies. Villa was said to have been deeply affected by the death of a daughter in San Antonio, Texas, a month after his surrender. Sixteen of his men, who were among a number captured by Pershing and convicted of various offenses were pardoned by the governor of New Mexico in November, 1920.

The first real tragedy in Villa's life occurred when General Felipe Angeles was executed as a revolutionist by Carranza troops in 1919. Villa admired Angeles not only as a patriot and soldier, but regarded him almost as a father. He wept bitterly when he received word that Angeles had been shot. He threatened reprisals and later added in the overthrow of the Carranza regime.

Villa's real name was Doreteo Orancho. He was born in 1868 of poor parentage in the little mining town of Las Nieves. As a youth he followed the trade of butcher until the death of his father and then he and his mother and sister went to Western Chihuahua. There he became a cowboy. Many stories have been told as to how he became an outlaw but the one most generally accepted is that it was because he killed a captain in one of President Diaz' regiments. Diaz then placed a price on his head. It was at this time that he changed his name to Villa. He organized a band of outlaws and became a terror to the rich land owners and mining men of Northern Chihuahua, robbing them and sharing the spoils with his followers and the impoverished peons.

When the Madero revolution against Diaz occurred in 1910, Villa became a military leader in that movement. At one time he was arrested and sent to Mexico City by General Victoriano Huerta. He was condemned to death by a military court for insubordination. Madero saved his life. Villa later escaped and fled across the Texas border.

Leads Fight on Carranza. Huerta became dictator after Madero's assassination in 1913 and when Carranza revolted against Huerta in Coahuila, Villa re-entered Mexico to fight for Carranza and organized a campaign against the man who had imprisoned him. Peons flocked to his standard and he is said to have gathered an army of 35,000 men.

Villa's first great victory against the Huerta troops was at Ojinaga. After the battle, 4,000 men and eight generals of the United States took refuge in the United States and were interned. In other fights, including San Pedro de las Colonias, Paredon and Torreón, Villa was also triumphant. Then came an estrangement between Villa and Carranza and when the latter made his triumphal entry into Mexico City, following the retirement of Huerta, the bandit leader declared war upon the new president. Villa had been one of the independent chiefs who had made and formulated the plan of Guadalupe which made Carranza first chief of the Constitutional forces.

With Emilio Zapata, another bandit chieftain opposed to Huerta, Villa made common cause. The two occupied Mexico City with their troops, forcing Carranza's retirement to Vera Cruz. General Alvaro Obregon, later successor to de la Huerta to the presidency, and loyal to Carranza, led an army opt to meet them. At Celaya, Irapuato and Cihao he defeated the Villistas, prestige as a commander. The Villa and Zapata followers were dispersed. One disaster followed another and Villa retreated across the mountains to Sonora where he joined forces with the Yaqui chieftain Urbalejo. In the years that followed, and up to the time of the Columbus, N. M. raid, Villa's influence as a military leader steadily waned. Defections from Villa's ranks continued, many of his generals leaving him and accepting the amnesty of the Carranza government. Villa sent his wife across the border and with only a few hundred men resumed the bandit raids for which in earlier years he had been notorious. Then came the overthrow of the Carranza regime, the rise of the de la Huerta provisional government and the election of Obregon. Obregon had proved Villa's master in the field. On May 27, 1920, three federal forces started out to capture Villa and the following July, as 8,000 men were closing in on him, he agreed to an armistice and surrendered to General Eugenio Martinez at Sabinas, practically on his own terms.

SWEDISH RIKSDAG ACTS TO END RUN RUNNING

STOCKHOLM—A severe blow has been dealt the run-running fraternity of Sweden through the adoption by the Riksdag of two bills which aim to curtail the activity of smuggling. One bill calls for the establishing of a special police force against liquor smuggling in the city and archipelago of Stockholm, and the other involves increased severity of punishment for violation of the liquor import laws. The creation of a special patrol for Stockholm, and the appropriation of about $35,000 thereto was passed only after considerable debate. The amendment to the smuggling law provides a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment at hard labor for offenders found guilty of extensive smuggling of unlawful import for commercial gain. In certain cases also the master of a ship upon which smuggling has been attempted can be held legally responsible.

These restrictive measures by the Riksdag have been necessitated because of the persistent smuggling which has been carried on across the sea coast of Sweden. Large quantities have been brought in illegally, the principal purveyors being Estonia and Germany. Although Sweden is not a prohibition country, the illegal distribution of liquor has become profitable because, under the "Bratt system" of liquor rationing, Swedish subjects are not legally entitled to more than a prescribed quantity of alcoholic beverages a month.
